THE ONLY WAY

Many Norway Citizens Have Discovered It

Just what to do when the kidneys are affected, is a question that concerns both young and old. Weak kidneys neglected in childhood lead to life long suffering. People of advanced years, with less vitality, suffer doubly. In youth or age, languor, backache, urinary irregularity, dizziness and nervousness make life a burden.

There is one remedy that acts directly on the kidneys and cures these troubles. Doan's Kidney Pills owe their world wide fame to the fact that they cure sick kidneys and cure them permanently. Follow the example of this Norway citizen and you will be convinced that this is so.

C. C. Dearborn living on Pleasant St., South Paris, Me., says: "I have used Doan's Kidney Pills and think so highly of them that I am perfectly willing to give my name to be published in their favor. I only hope it may be the means of bringing relief to someone suffering as I have suffered. For a long time I was troubled by a dull pain in my back. My kidneys did not act in a proper manner and the secretions were very unnatural in appearance. I procured Doan's Kidney Pills from F. A. Shurtleff & Co's Drug Store, used them in accordance with the directions, and they helped me a great deal. I am going to continue using this remedy and hope to be permanently cured."

For sale by all dealers. Price 50 cts. Foster-Milburn Co., Buffalo, New York sole agents for the United States.

Remember the name—Doan's—and no other.

BARN-YARD MANURE WANTED.

I want a cord of old barn yard manure, it must be first quality. No horse manure or shavings or sawdust in it. Will pay big price for it delivered at Round Pond. Call on or address F. W. SANBORN.

I Cor., 4th Chap., 5th Verse.

Who knows what stress of weather Or what gale's rude strength This man had buffeted? Or while he thus lay may Sit in judgment here, And With a ponderous finality His brother's sentence thus pronounce: Nay, friend, Thou knowest naught! All that passed through this man's Mind, his grief of heart and soul, His said, his soul would avenge And his great brother's will In some way he assuaged the grief And eased the suffering of his Neader friends.

Do not thou claim intuition, intellect, or Mind, to understand the deep intricacies Of God's plan for him?

Then judge him not. In his soul were more than he could bear. All the fine qualities of the man: His deep affection for his friends, His blunt yet subtle, when time should ripen them—

We know him in full. So let him sleep. Far on his life's long journey He had gone.

His burden heavier grew, His pathway was not broad nor easy, And as the storm-clouds darkened all his sky, And fierce winds beat him, He stumbled onward, in the twilight Deepening ever.

Until so weary that his burden bore him down, And by the lonely wayside fell asleep.

So let him rest. Give him for his pillow, undisturbed, The burden of his life with grand For the clanking rose—

Like the clanking rose— Will breathe old airs, and sweet, That kisses down his eyelids still.

Relapse of a Political Nightmare

The Results and Effects of the President's

The five political parties that were trying to gain

The agency in the Presidential campaign, have While contending for power in the Presidential race, Republicans, Democrats, Prohibitionists, Socialists, Laborers, too,

Have ceased to contend since the campaign was through.

And have cast their ballots in the box and are to see the results when mist clears away.

The American press with lightning speed, has published the news for the people to read; and

Politicians and voters are hungry with greed For campaign news they have wanted to read; The guns of the Nation like thunder did roar, and

The telephone lines that extend everywhere Have brought news to the phones on the lines in the air.

The rulers of Nations the papers peruse, That come from the press with American news; The wireless machines have sent them the word, and

And the results of our election all Nations have heard.

The victors are shouting with joy and delight, because they have won the choice; And have elected a President, a man of their choice.

While orators and laymen in gladness rejoice, The vanquished parties have nothing to do; But regret the day they ate the stew,— And will not contend for power again Until in another Presidential campaign.

While the country is ruled by rum and the trust, All classes of people must bear it or bust, The tariff and free trade, money and ruin Will be a bone for contention for all time to come.

Capital and labor will never agree, But will thenceforward quarrel; The Prohibition party may sometime arise, and give all other parties a grand surprise.

Oil government's machine that is tainted with rust, Grant suffrage to women and ruin the trusts, Grant free, unlimited coinage of gold and silver, sixteen to one,

Out down the tariff and banish the rum, And exterminate polyantry, evil and great, A tap root of Satan from the latter day Saint, That has blighted the prospects in many a home.

And cast over our Nation a shadow of gloom. Lovell, Me. J. C. HOWARD.

When We Sang in the Old Church Choir.

The world was young in those days of ours, The world was so young and new, All builded of birds and of sweet spring flow.

And to-morrow fresh wonders grew; But the world rolled back and Love reigned instead.

And smote on a magic lyre— For someone sat in the seat ahead When we sang in the old church choir.

And lips that were wondrous rare; Life grant me but one desire— To see and feel as I felt that night.

When we sang in the old church choir. The preacher prayed with a will. And when He prayed for "those near and dear," The deacons shouted a loud "Amen!"

And I felt that the Lord was near. The preacher preached of the bleeding Lamb, And his words were words of fire; But I worshipped the girl with the crimson tann

When we sang in the old church choir. The church bells rang and the organ played in the land that he loved so well. Hark! out of the new church, deep and strong, I sit and dream and contented am.

For someone is by my fire, Sweet as in the days of the crimson tann, When we sang in the old church choir. LOWELL OTUS REESE.

Scott's Emulsion

of Cod Liver Oil is the means of life and enjoyment of life to thousands: men, women and children.

When appetite fails, it restores it. When food is a burden, it lifts the burden.

When you lose flesh, it brings the plumpness of health.

When work is hard and duty is heavy, it makes life bright.

It is the thin edge of the wedge; the thick end is food. But what is the use of food when you hate it and can't digest it?

Scott's Emulsion of Cod Liver Oil is the food that makes you forget your stomach.

Send this advertisement, together with name of paper in which it appears, your address and four cents to cover postage and we will send you a "Complete Handy Atlas of the World."

A PROCLAMATION

Whereas, the people of our city have been led to purchase so-called remedies from which they have received no benefit whatever, and having thus wasted so much hard-earned money, it has come to pass that they know not what to believe.

Inasmuch as this unsatisfactory state of affairs exists, KNOW, THEREFORE, ALL PERSONS who are in need of such a medicine that we will supply them with VINOL on a POSITIVE GUARANTEE that if it does not succeed in benefiting them we will refund the entire amount of money paid us for it.

There is no one medicine that will cure everything, but there are some we know to be honest, reliable, and of great curative value. Such is VINOL; it is not a secret medicine,—just peptonate of iron, wine, and all the curative extractives of cod liver oil, combined. We are familiar with every particle of it, and KNOW that it should benefit every one who uses it.

Could any offer be more fair than this? You are Often The Kidneys Are Weakened by Over-Work.

 Unhealthy Kidneys Make Impure Blood.
 It used to be considered that only urinary and bladder troubles were to be traced to the kidneys, but now modern science proves that nearly all diseases have their beginning in the disorder of these most important organs.
 The kidneys filter and purify the blood—that is their work.
 Therefore, when your kidneys are weak or out of order, you can understand how quickly your entire body is affected and how every organ seems to fail to do its duty.
 If you are sick or "feel badly," begin taking the great kidney remedy, Dr. Kilmer's Swamp-Root, because as soon as your kidneys are well they will help all the other organs to health. A trial will convince anyone.
 If you are sick you can make no mistake by first doctoring your kidneys. The mild and the extraordinary effect of Dr. Kilmer's Swamp-Root, the great kidney remedy, is soon realized. It stands the highest for its wonderful cures of the most distressing cases, and is sold on its merits by all the best druggists in fifty-cent and one-dollar size bottles. You may have a sample bottle of Swamp-Root by mail free, also a pamphlet telling you how to find out if you have kidney or bladder trouble. Mention this paper when writing to Dr. Kilmer & Co., Binghamton, N. Y. Don't make any mistake, but remember the name, Swamp-Root, Dr. Kilmer's Swamp-Root, and the address, Binghamton, N. Y., on every bottle.

IS THIS A SQUARE DEAL?
 That's the squarest kind of a square deal as every fair minded man knows. But Frank Kimball can afford to make this offer because he knows that M-I-O-Na tablets are a worthy stomach remedy, and that the makers will back up the generous offer.

The Ten Mistakes of Life.
 An old English paper is said to have given what are called "the ten mistakes of life," as follows:
 1. To set up our own standard of what is right and wrong and judge people accordingly.
 2. To measure the enjoyment of others by our own.
 3. To expect uniformity of opinion in the world.
 4. To look for judgment and experience in youth.
 5. To endeavor to mold all dispositions alike.
 6. To look for perfection in our own actions.
 7. To worry ourselves and others with what cannot be remedied.
 8. To refuse to yield in immaterial matters.
 9. To refuse to alleviate, so far as lies in our power, all that which needs alleviation.
 10. To refuse to make allowance for the infirmities of others.

Preparing Gifts Ahead.
 The woman with an eye for Christmas or prizes should invest in some of the Directoire belts that are thought so smart just now. If she is clever at making things it is possible to save by buying materials. These belts come in all the soft pastel shades, in black, white, and dark colors, or can be made to match any suit. They are three or four inches wide and long enough to tie at the left side and hang almost to the knees. Sometimes they are of satin, tucked in the middle and edged with ball fringe; again they are of satin ribbon and round cord, woven or plaited in five strands, pointed at the ends and finished with a silk tassel. When worn with an ordinary dress, these belts are knotted around the waist line; with high Empire skirts they are adjusted to the line at the top and fastened with a flat slide with a hook underneath that goes into a catch at the side of the skirt.
 The sash during the last few months has veered. First it was knotted on one side and then on the other. Occasionally it has appeared slightly to the left or right of the front of the waist. But now and probably for the rest of the present season it will be at the back, which seems by many signs its rightful position.
 At its earliest appearance in this season's adoption of it the sash was made of thinnest, softest silks or ribbons. Liberty silks and satins seemed especially fitted for it. And these fabrics are quite as suitable now, but they are not exclusively used for the sash. The heavier silks and satins are found in its making, and the softest, silkiest velvets or contrasting shade, finish desirably many of the gowns intended for winter wear. Especially if the gown is filmy, clinging stuff does the sash of velvet make a pleasing impression.

Economy and Variety
 Through Simple Home-made Devices.
 "I have been experimenting for the last six months with many fireless cookers," said Anna Barrows, "but I have found that the one you can make yourself is just as good as any on the market. Set the kettle which contains the food in a kettle of boiling water. The surround the whole with some substance which is a non-conductor of heat. That is all there is to a fireless cooker. It should be used as an adjunct to every kitchen for foods which demand long, slow cooking. It not only saves money, but it is better for foods which require this kind of cooking. Of course, if one is cooking with coal, so that a thing can be set on the back of the stove to simmer, it doesn't matter. But every one who cooks with gas, electricity, oil or alcohol should have a fireless cooker."
 Miss Barrows, an Oxford county girl, was teaching a class in cooking at the Brooklyne Institute, in the new Academy of Music, where a fine hall was fitted up with electric cooking apparatus, running hot and cold water and everything else necessary for cooking lessons. Her theme was "Markets and Meats," and her remarks on the fireless cooker came apropos of a dish of braised veal. She first took the tougher, scraggly, more undesirable portions of a round of veal, rolled them in flour or bread crumbs and fried them brown in pork fat. For the fat she tried out slices of lard pork.
 "The pork gives the veal a nice flavor it would not otherwise have," said she. "Veal has been called the chameleon of the kitchen, we eat it under many different names. Many persons are opposed to meat in cooking. We require a certain amount of fat, and we consume it. Americans consume it largely in the form of butter. Butter costs 35 or 40 cents a pound. It is an animal fat, and I am not sure that it is any more wholesome than good beef or pork fat, at 10 or 12 cents, nicely tried out. Certainly I would just as soon use the beef and pork fat in cooking as to use cooking butter."
 The bits of veal being browned by this time, she took them out, added to the fat in the pan a tablespoonful of flour and stirred it smooth into a brown gravy. Then she added water and flavoring. It may be made different every time, but a good one is made of onion, tomato or table sauce. Returning the veal to this sauce she said, "Now this is exactly the sort of dish to put in a fireless cooker. It wants to simmer slowly for a long time. That makes a good fireless cooker. A good fireless cooker may be made of any material. This is the way to use up tough, cheap meat."
 Remember always that the tough muscles of the animal have just as much nutriment in them as the tender ones. They are not so agreeable to chew, that's all.
 "If it requires much fuel to make them tender they may not be any cheaper in the end. But if they can get long cooking in a fireless cooker or on the back of a coal stove which is kept always going in winter money can be saved. You can make this stew or braise of the rough ends and trimmings of any kind of meat."
 "Aside from economy, this is a question of variety. People grow tired of constant stews, chops and roasts. Most housewives feed their families entirely on those things, the most expensive cuts, costing 18 and 20 cents a pound and more, while other portions of the animal at 12 and 14 cents a pound are just as wholesome and prepared in this way, with different palatable sauces, would be an agreeable change.
 "With our city life and delicate appetites variety must be constantly sought by the housewife, and with the price of meat rising every year there are few who must not consider economy. A good way to get both is to use the less desirable portions of the animal. Among these are heart, liver, kidneys and tripe. These are commonly looked upon as the little suspicious people, but they are not sure that they are quite wholesome. They are just as wholesome as the expensive portions of the same animal, but they require longer cooking and more careful preparation.
 Here is a piece of fresh tripe. It was plunged in boiling water, and has been plumped since we began. It is now tender. Now cut it in pieces, dip in batter or in egg and bread crumbs and fry in deep fat and they will be a nutritious and palatable variety. In many houses tripe is never used. There is no reason for that."
 Miss Barrows larded some meat for the class. The larding needle is a steel prong with four forks at the end. One end is fixed a little strip of fat. When the needle is drawn through the meat it leaves the pork behind. Roasts are larded, also the breasts of grouse and other birds likely to be dry. The pork melts and bastes the meat, making it moist and savory. When it is not convenient to lard the meat, a slice of suet may be slashed into lace work and laid on the meat, which it will waste in the same way.
 A savory morsel of veal is made by running the ragged bits, which have been fried first, through the meat cutter, with bread crumbs and savory seasoning, then rolling this filling up in slices of veal, skewering the whole, laying it in deep fat and serving as "veal birds."
 A Seasonable Nerve Cure.
 The latest rest cure for over-wrought nerves is to betake yourself into the back yard with an assorted set of shovels and dig up the garden for plants. Of course if the ground is frozen it may not be such a good job for the garden but it will be an improvement for the nerves. "Not much rest about that cure," your unaccustomed mind will complain at the end of your first day out of doors, but you will find that you will sleep like a child and awake with nerves toned up to the point of wanting some more.
 The reason for the asserted tools is that the short-handled shovel will exert the waist muscles and reduce your hips; while that with a long handle will bring into play the muscles of chest, shoulders and arms.
 Then, if you go about your work in a workmanlike manner, naturally the foot will go on the end of the spade as the hammer which does wonders for weak ankles.
 If you have ever read a floral column you will know that the fall is the best time for digging the garden, so the happy consciousness that you are being a modern horticulturist and cribbing cures from nerve sanitariums at one and the same time, should spur you to immediate action.

SOUTH WATERFORD.

Ladies' Night.
Last Saturday evening was Ladies' night at Bear Mountain grange. Sixty-five members and five visitors were in attendance and a novel scene was witnessed when the Master called the meeting to order. A procession in single file marched into the hall arrayed in some of the external habiliments of gentlemen, such as frock coats, stove-pipe hats and caps, escorted by the L. A. S. and as they came to the stations of the officers, the ladies in the marching column fell out of line and occupied the chair of an officer, to wit: Master, Mrs. Ida Riggs; Overseer, Mrs. Helen Rice; Lecturer, Mrs. Belle Haggood; Steward, Mrs. Maude Sanborn; A. S., Mrs. Vesta Jenkins; Chaplain, Mrs. Dr. Stimpson; G. K., Mrs. Laura Shaw.

All the officers pro tem performed the services of the evening with grace and perfect accuracy. An elaborate program was given in honor of the gentlemen guests present and they treated themselves of all the privileges of Leap year. The program was as follows:

Zither quartet, four voices played by Carrie, Jennie and Bessie Hamlin and Maude Sanborn, Soprano; Dorothy Stimpson, Alto; Mrs. McGowan, Tenor; Beautiful and sweetly sung. Recital. Catherine Stone. Piano duet. Jennie and Carrie Hamlin. Reading. Mrs. Dr. Stimpson. Zither quartet. Mrs. Ruggs. Encores.

It was voted on motion of Sister Grover that the grange hold an all-day meeting on Dec. 5. Brother George Rice and wife, Brother and Sister Miller, Charlotte and Ann Sanderson were appointed a committee of arrangements. Voted to invite our own friends. One candidate was proposed.

Brother Charles S. Hamlin of the executive committee introduced the McCaskey system of keeping accounts. It was explained by Mr. McAlister and W. K. Hamlin, and upon their approval and desire, it was voted to order that system for the use of the grange store and for all customers who wish to enjoy its convenience and benefit.

The dancing party and oyster supper tendered by Capt. Horace Smith and his company to the winners in the recent shooting match, commanded by Willis Learned, came off last Friday evening. About 30 couples participated in the festivities of the night. The orchestra was composed of Andrews, violin, director; Gladys Robinson, cornet; Jennie Hamlin, accompanist. As the last oyster disappeared, Horace was asked, "What's the toll?" "O, that's all right," quoth the captain. He recognized the ADVERTISER.

A regular meeting of the Waterford Dairy Testing association was convened at the school-house at East Waterford on Wednesday afternoon, Nov. 4. There was a large attendance of men and women and much interest was manifested in the objects and present work of the association as explained by Prof. Leon S. Merrill, state dairy instructor. Mr. Merrill gave an excellent lecture on what the association was organized for, and what it is expected to accomplish for those farmers who earnestly persevere in working for the attainment of the ends contemplated. Many questions were asked and answered by Prof. Merrill.

The next meeting will be at the grange hall in South Village, subject for discussion, Light and Heat in Stables and Diseases of Dairy Animals. A meeting of the directors is called on Friday evening, Nov. 13, at the house of W. K. Hamlin for the purpose of making a plan of associated work for the coming year. Every director is requested to be present.

Hebron Water Supply.

Engineer E. C. Jordan and a crew of three men from Portland went to Hebron, Monday to start in the work of connecting the Hebron water supply with the Hebron water works. The work of surveying the line from the sanatorium to Hall pond, the Hebron water supply, was begun some time ago by government surveyors and will be completed by Mr. Jordan. The pond is a distance of about six miles from the sanatorium over rough land and through thick woods, and the surveyors will be kept busy for some time. The sanatorium is nearly a mile from Hebron, large and situated on the summit of one of the highest hills in the vicinity.

Maine Pomological Society had its annual meeting this year at Waterville. Among the many things under discussion, was that the state might provide an "Experimental Orchard".

Desperate Coughs
Dangerous coughs. Extremely perilous coughs. Coughs that rasp and tear the throat and lungs. Coughs that shake the whole body. You need a regular medicine, a doctor's medicine, for such a cough. Ask your doctor about Ayer's Cherry Pectoral.

A Modern Pearl Farm.

In the Gulf of Lower California there is in operation the largest pearl farm in the world, where the cultivation of pearls has been taken up as a practical industry. To harvest the annual crop of pearls raised on this farm requires the labor of 1,000 people, including the modern pearl divers, whose methods have been completely revolutionized by the up-to-date appliances employed in this new industry. Pearl farming, as originated by the Mexican company which owns the big Lower California farm, is the result of the discovery of a very simple fact concerning pearl-bearing mollusks.

After twenty-five years of study and experiment it was discovered that the shell loses its gem after it is two years old, and, unless opened at the proper time, there will be no pearl within.

Following this discovery the system whereby the shells are cultivated until the proper time for opening was devised. From the time of planting the eggs to the harvesting of the crop two years must elapse, as that length of time is required for the growth of an ordinary shell.

The eggs, which are gathered with the shells during the season, when the eggs are being deposited, are placed in protective cages, in the bottom of which are little artificial channels, made to imitate the bottom of the sea. The mollusks from their natural pearl shells are being transferred to larger cages, also designed to protect them. During the transferring the stock is carefully inspected and all the "dead" or unbearing shells are thrown away. The second cases are placed in deeper water and in two years, when the harvest of pearls is ready to be gathered. The divers descend into the cages with little risk.

On the lower California farm it has been demonstrated that it is possible to open gently the valves of the shell with a pair of tweezers to disclose the presence or absence of the pearl and to return the mollusk to the water, alive and unharmed. The usual method under the old system in pearl fishing being most uncertain is unnecessarily destructive.

In the search for pearls great quantities of shells are piled open, an operation that is certain to destroy the mollusk within. At the Austin farm the mollusks are one gem to the bushel of shells, is considered a good catch. Many pearl fishermen crush the shells in their eagerness, thus destroying the value of even the best of the Oriental races open the shells by piling them in the sun to dry and decay.

Study of Timber Conservation.

The field work along this line is broad. It is well known that the superior grades of lumber are obtained from old mature trees, provided they are not weakened by decay or other influences. In other words a thousand feet board measure of lumber, sawed from a tree two feet in diameter, costs less and is worth more than a thousand feet sawed from a tree only eight inches in diameter. The lumber obtained from young trees usually contains a large amount of sapwood. If ties, poles, etc., are cut from such material, they will decay far more rapidly than if cut from heartwood. It is not good business policy, however, in a great many cases to saw the most valuable timber into commodities which are relatively low in cost, such as ties and poles. It would be better therefore, to find out just what size and classes of timber can be best utilized for the cheaper commodities when given a preservation treatment.

To this and a careful study will be made to ascertain the amount and value of the products sawed from trees of different sizes and just how each can be best utilized so as to secure greatest economy and profit.

For example, can a tree eight inches in diameter be best utilized for ties or for flooring, and how will the profits compare if treated with those sold untreated? It seems reasonable to suppose that the profits derived from the sale of treated timber will exceed those from untreated timber.

Moreover, the greater use of chemically preserved wood will undoubtedly result in that wood giving a greater life in service. Hence, the amount of timber cut annually in the United States, simply to replace that which has decayed, will be materially decreased, and in further conservation of forest resources will result. Recent estimates by the Forest Service place this reduction at 10 per cent of the total timber cut. The practical benefits of these experiments are of the investigations for the utilization of sawmill waste are at once apparent.

In Place of the Stiff Collar.

The turnover collar and stiff tailored tie have kept a firm grip on popularity despite all efforts to oust them from favor.

The beauty doctor declines against them on account of injury to the neck, while French fashion makers consider them lacking in feminine softness, and tempt us from our allegiance with all sorts of fascinating neck novelties.

The latest tempter is the made stocks in every color and cut. These closely resemble the crush collar worn several years ago. They are made up in soft

Liberty satin in any shade, drawn tightly to a boned foundation. They are finished at top and bottom with a fine plaiting of muslin or sole or net of any becoming depth.

These rubings, by the way, should be shunned by the fat-faced, short-necked woman; the soft, drooping effect is unbecoming, especially at the throat line.

Often the narrow rubbing is used at the top of the stock while the bottom is finished with a narrow band of bias silk finished with a stiff bow in front, with several pointed ends, says Philadelphia

Ledger. Or a narrow velvet ribbon is brought around the throat ending in a knot and three long tasseled ends.

Smart looking stocks are made of mull or sheer Japanese linen, embroided in colors or self tones. These are shaped high at the sides and are put smoothly over a boned foundation.

Sometimes they have two overlapping stole-like ends of the embroidered edged with lace for a tie; again they have a shaped band around the lower half of the collar in a contrasting color of silk.

This lower band has rounding points in front, which are separated about an inch and a half to show the embroidered collar beneath. The two parts are connected by narrow velvet bands coming under the silk and buttoned through with two fancy buttons on each side.

At the bottom of the stock is a long tie, of the embroidered mull, finished in plaiting of net. This is just the width at the top of the space between the edges of the silk band.

Friday Not So Unlucky.

According to This Record of Historical Events it Was Mighty Lucky in the United States.

You mustn't be too ready to believe all the evil reports the patrons of the other days spread about Friday. It's been a pretty good sort of a day, so far as the history of the world is concerned.

If you will take the trouble to glance

your eye down the list of notable dates that once in a while you come across in the dark corner of the library, you'll find that Friday has a good deal of a claim to consideration. For example, it was on Friday, Aug. 8, 1492, that

Columbus set out from Palos, in Spain, to discover America.

And it was again on Friday, Oct. 12,

1492, that the mariner discovered land

100 Violins.

Almost everyone in this vicinity knows that R. G. Wright makes violins, but as he makes them for a pastime no one could guess how many he has made.
Perhaps Mr. Wright himself could not tell exactly how many he has made, but thinks it is somewhere in the vicinity of 100.

There are not many factories where violins are turned out at wholesale, but here and there may be found a maker of violins. One reason for this is that few kinds of wood are adapted for violin making and those having to be specially prepared. The tone does not depend so much upon the workmanship as upon material. As a general thing, the older the wood from which a violin is made, the better the tone, so a violin maker is always looking for odd pieces of wood suitable for his craft. Violins improve with age, so those who play them are always looking for some rare old instrument. Love of a violin, coupled with mechanical ability, is generally the first impulse to begin the making of violins.

This was the case with Mr. Wright.
When a mere boy he showed such a taste for violin music, that when he was 12 years of age his brother-in-law gave him a violin and he began to play. One day his violin fell and the top was broken off and he undertook to mend it. He succeeded so well that he then set about making a new one.

Mr. Wright was born in Oxford but went to Mechanic Falls nearly 30 years ago. As might be expected, Mr. Wright is a mechanic as well as a musician.
Being interested in violins, whenever he came across any wood of the right kind, with the grain running the right way and with a vibrant quality he saved it, and from it in his spare moments made violins.—Ledger.

GILEAD.
Ephraim Wight.

Ephraim Wight died Wednesday evening, Oct. 28.

Mr. Wight was born on May 6, 1830 to Gilead, the son of Ephraim and Susannah (Patch) Wight. He lived in Gilead until 1841, when he married Priscilla Savory Burbank, and went to Greenwood, in 1844 he moved to Gorham, N. H., and engaged extensively in the lumbering business and after his removal to Gilead in 1872, he continued his occupation in connection with his farming, until failing health compelled him to leave such cares for those younger than he.

The deceased leaves three sons, Eliphail B. of Lynn, Mass., whom he visited less than two weeks before his death, Osman O. of Greene, Me., and A. Dana, both of whom helped to care for him in his last illness. Besides these he leaves ten grandchildren, five great grandchildren and a host of neighbors and friends.

"Uncle Ephraim," as he was familiarily called, was a member of Co. L 1st Heavy Artillery, N. H. Volunteer and served in the army of the Potomac until his honorable discharge in June 1865.

The funeral occurred at his late home last Saturday, conducted by Rev. Henry Farfar, a lifelong friend, and Rev.
William Clews, the resident pastor.
After the singing of favorite hymns by quartet, Mr. Wight was laid to rest amid beautiful flowers.

Mrs. Alice Farwell of Bethel, who has spent a fortnight with relatives here, has returned home.

Extra Carter and wife have come home from a visit of several days with friends in Lisbon and Bath, N. H.

Anniversary of Hebron Grange.
Hebron Grange observed its 34th anniversary, Oct. 31. This Grange was organized Oct. 19, 1874, with 21 charter members. Of these but four sisters remain. One of these is Mrs. N. D. Harlow, who is living in Massachusetts.

The others are Mrs. Eliza Bearse, Delphinia Cushman and Mrs. Duclinda Ribbs. All three were present and assisted with the exercises.

A short business meeting was held and the usual Grange dinner was served with ice cream in addition to the regular dessert. The program was in open session as follows:

Music, choir; reading, Sister Nellie Keen; history of the past Grange year, Sister Agnes Bearse; music, choir; question, "How I would like to be a Granger," opened by Sister A. P. Given;

"How I would keep house if I were a woman," opened by Bro. Charles George; dialogue, "A Telegram," by Sisters Lizzie Phillips and Gertrude George; music, choir; recollections of early Grange meetings by older members.

Hebron Grange holds its regular meetings the second and fourth Wednesdays of the month. The question for discussion Nov. 11 was: "Does success depend more on the farm or on the factory?"
opened by Worthy Master E. H. Marshall.

The Cause of Colds.
Good Advice Regarding the Prevention of Coughs and Colds.

If people would only properly fortify and strengthen their systems about 95 per cent of coughs, colds and pneumonia might be avoided. These troubles are simply the result of weakness, which produces a catarrhal condition of the mucous membrane, which is an internal skin of the body. When this skin is weakened, it becomes infected with germs which are carried through the system by the blood. These parasites attack and break these delicate tissues and set up a soreness which produces what is in reality an external sore.

The only thing that will cure coughs and colds and prevent pneumonia is a medication which is absorbed and carried by the blood so that the diseased membrane is disinfected, cleaned, soothed and healed.

We have a remedy which we honestly believe infallible and unsurpassable for the prevention and cure of coughs, colds and all catarrhal conditions. It is the prescription of a famous physician, who has an enviable reputation of 30 years of cures gained through the use of this medicine. We promise to either affect a cure in every case or make no charge for the medicine. We urge everybody in Norway who has need of such a medicine to try Rexall Muc-Tone.

It stands to reason that we could not afford to make such statements and give our own personal guarantee to this remedy if we were not absolutely positive that we could substantiate our claim in every particular, and we see no reason why anyone should hesitate to accept our offer and try it. We have two sizes of Rexall Muc-Tone. Prices 50c and $1.00. Sometimes a 50c bottle is sufficient for a cure. As a general thing, if a chronic case is cured with an average of three large bottles. Remember, the medicine will cost you nothing if you are not satisfied in every particular. F. P. Stone, Norway, Me.

SOUTH PARIS.

Psychic Clairvoyant Visits Shiloh.
C. C. Dearborn of South Paris, the psychic clairvoyant, attended services at Shiloh, Sunday. He saw the room filled with earth-bored spirits, some influencing the speaker to say one thing and others, another. The Journal says in an interview with Mr. Dearborn:—

"The atmosphere was fairly charged with this influence and I could see that the audience was completely hypnotized.
I have seen spirits in every form and condition, but never before have I seen such a wild spirit scene as this. The general effect seemed to be fun rather than viselousness. Now and then a spirit would touch the head of some one in the audience and the person would let out a shriek. This seemed to please the spirits and was a part of the performance. To me, who could see it all, it was a great theatrical farce and that was what seemed to be the object.
It was fun and frolic for the earth-bound spirits.

"Now to come back to the psychical part. The people there are completely under this occult influence and it is a case of white slavery. They are actually honest in their belief, but of course are totally ignorant of the causes behind it all. They think that the phenomena are by God, when in reality this art is by fun-loving, earth-bound spirits on a lark.

"All the people there are slaves to this power. The leaders allow them no chance to learn better. The children are guarded and kept away from all outside influence where they can learn anything of this power. They are mentally and spiritually fed on swill and are even willing that their stomachs shall be fed in the same way. The leaders are shrewd.
All the people who are in the building are called hundred fold saints, while those who live on the Shiloh farms around are called sixty fold saints. Just why this distinction is made I cannot tell.

"I saw one man in the crowd with a spirit having a white rim around his head. This showed that this was a good spirit. I have no doubt that man is struggling hard to break loose from this crowd and get away. Mark my word, the leaders will soon have trouble with that man. The majority of them, however, are slaves of the most abject kind.
They are bound by a spirit spell from which they cannot escape."

TO RHEUMATISM SUFFERERS.
Scientific Treatment That Costs Nothing
Unless It Cures.

Neuralgia Anodyne's remarkable cures of rheumatism has probably caused more favorable talk and comment than any other rheumatism cure ever put on the market, as it seems unfailing in curing this dread disease.

It is much more successful than ordinary rheumatism remedies, due to its action being entirely different. It is taken in small doses internally, reaching the nerve centers and driving the Uric Acid from the blood. At the same time, it is rubbed on the affected parts, and thus its curative power goes through the pores of the skin to the aching tissues and throbbing nerves, giving quick relief and cure.

So reliable is the Anodyne in curing rheumatism, neuralgia and all aches and pains that it is sold under an absolute guarantee to refund the money if not satisfactory.

A large-sized bottle costs 25c; nothing if it does not cure. It is made by

OXFORD.

Flag Raising at Welchville.

The pupils of the Welchville school had a flag raising Friday afternoon, Nov. 6. The scholars brought the flag, furnished the entertainment, and the success of the affair was assured by the interest taken by both teacher and pupils.

The schoolhouse was well filled with parents and invited guests, and the children were very interested in the most creditable manner, showing unmistakably the careful drilling and attention given them by their teacher, Soile Hutchins.

They were cramped for room but the interest and enthusiasm displayed by the scholars made up for any deficiency and made the afternoon's program pleasing and entertaining. Program:

"PUT IT IN THE PAPER SO ALL MAY KNOW"

A delighted Mother who wishes All to know of her Recovery Through the Use of Father John's Medicine.

A pressing request has come from Mrs. Powelson of 3 Osborn Place, Elizabeth, N. J., that the truth about her remarkable recovery may be known so that other sufferers may find the way to the great and lasting benefits contained in Father John's Medicine.

"I have suffered with bronchial asthma," writes Mrs. Powelson, "and find Father John's Medicine excellent relief. I have the medicine at my bedside every night and when I feel an attack coming on a teaspoonful breaks up the cough."

"I give my children Father John's Medicine for colds and coughs. They like the medicine so well that they cry for it every time they see the bottle, I and colds. Please print this in the paper so everybody in need of Father John's Medicine can get help from it as I have."

(Signed) MRS. JOHN POWELSON, 3 Osborn Place, Elizabeth, N. J.
